CONTENTS

CHAPTER I
INTRODUCTION (page 1)
By R. B. Wernham, Professor of Modern History, Worcester College, Oxford

CHAPTER II
THE ECONOMY OF EUROPE 1559–1609
By F. C. Spooner, Professor of Economic History, University of Durham

The international economy recuperates after Cateau-Cambrésis ........................................ page 14–15
Economic phases have their own character ................................................................. 15–16
The effects of historical geography ................................................................................. 16–17
Contemporary opinions on inflation ................................................................................. 18–19
Prices in France between 1471 and 1598 ......................................................................... 19
The disparity of different sectors ......................................................................................... 20
Wage levels hard to assess. A fall in living standards ......................................................... 20–2
Varying incidence of inflation ............................................................................................ 22
Dearth and disease: plague ................................................................................................. 23
The balance of gold and silver. Effect on the economy ...................................................... 24–6
Spanish importation and exportation of bullion ............................................................... 26–8
Moneys of account. The adjustment of currencies ............................................................ 28–30
The inflationary effect of credit. Shift to the North .......................................................... 30–1
Population as an economic factor. Expansion of cities .................................................... 32–5
Cereals and livestock inadequate to demand. Fisheries .................................................... 36–8
Industry: luxury products and local production ............................................................... 38–9
Expansion considerable but still insufficient .................................................................... 40–2
Assessment of the century .................................................................................................. 42–3

CHAPTER III
THE PAPACY, CATHOLIC REFORM, AND CHRISTIAN MISSIONS
By T. M. Parker, Fellow, Chaplain, and Praelector in Theology and Modern History, University College, Oxford

The Council of Trent formative, with little innovation ...................................................... 44
The combating of heresy and the definition of doctrine ..................................................... 45
Reform of abuses insufficient to reconcile the Protestants ................................................ 45–7
Obstacles to progress and achievement ............................................................................. 47–8
The regulation of clerical life ............................................................................................... 49
Centralisation: the growth of papal authority .................................................................... 49–51
Lay control of the Church in Germany ............................................................................. 51–2
Church and State in France and elsewhere in Europe ...................................................... 52–4
Missionary work in the New World .................................................................................. 54–5
The influence of the State therein ...................................................................................... 55–7
Estimate of conversion to Christianity .............................................................................. 57
CONTENTS

The Catholic position in Germany, Poland and Hungary ............................... page 58-9
Revival towards the end of the century ...................................................... 59-60
Causes of this: nationalism and the Inquisition ........................................ 60-2
The Spanish Inquisition and the pope ...................................................... 62-3
The share of preachers and teachers in revival ........................................ 63-5
The educational work of the Jesuits .......................................................... 65-6
The part of University teaching ................................................................. 66-7
Controversy: grace and salvation ............................................................... 67-9
The attainment of sanctity. Spiritual literature ......................................... 69-71

CHAPTER IV

PROTESTANTISM AND CONFESSIONAL STRIFE

By T. M. PARKER

I. LUTHERANISM AFTER LUTHER

The characters of Luther and Melanchthon ................................................ 72-3
The growth of differences ........................................................................... 74
Efforts at compromise with the Catholics .................................................. 75-7
Conflict within the Lutheran party: Melanchthon's position ...................... 77-8
The Adiaphoristic controversy .................................................................... 78-9
Problems of salvation and free will ........................................................... 79-80
Lutheranism endangered by disputes ......................................................... 80-1
The shadow of Calvinism ............................................................................ 81-2
Attempts to restore unity ............................................................................. 82-3
Concord achieved. A definitive statement of Lutheran theology ............... 83-4
Factors for survival in German Lutheranism ............................................. 84-5
Protestantism and Catholicism in Scandinavia ......................................... 86-8
The ethos of Lutheranism ........................................................................... 89

2. THE DEVELOPMENT AND SPREAD OF CALVINISM

The character of Calvinist Geneva. The Academy ....................................... 89-90
Calvin and Luther compared ........................................................................ 91
The course of Calvinism in France. Organisation ........................................ 92-4
Huguenots and the Guises .......................................................................... 94-5
The rights of the laity .................................................................................. 95-6
A Huguenot state within the State .............................................................. 96-7
Religion and political tyranny: writings ...................................................... 97-9
Calvinism in the Netherlands ...................................................................... 100
Calvinism as a system: discipline in face of trouble ................................... 101-2
Insurrection and violence ............................................................................ 103
The two Unions. Roots of religious allegiance .......................................... 103-4
Doctrinal disputes among Calvinists ......................................................... 104-5
Developments among the Marian exiles ..................................................... 106-7
Their situation as bishops return to England ............................................. 107-8
Church reform: Puritan hopes and frustrations ......................................... 108-11
The political background in Scotland ....................................................... 112
The early career of John Knox .................................................................... 113-14
The crisis at Perth and in Edinburgh ......................................................... 114-15
Ecclesiastical revenues in Scotland ............................................................. 115-16
The settlement of 1560-1. The General Assembly ..................................... 116-17
Steps towards presbyterianism ................................................................... 117-18
CONTENTS

King James and the Kirk .......................................................... 118-19
Calvinism in Germany, Poland and Eastern Europe .................. 120-1
Some characteristics of Calvinism ........................................... 122
Anabaptists and Familists ...................................................... 123-4
Socinianism ........................................................................... 125

CHAPTER V
SOCIAL STRUCTURE, OFFICE-HOLDING AND POLITICS, CHIEFLY IN WESTERN EUROPE

By J. Hurstfield, Astor Professor of English History, University College, London

The pressure of population and prices ................................... 126-7
Irregular effect upon the economy .......................................... 127
Social services inadequate to needs. The immobility of labour .... 127-8
The financial devices of impecunious governments .................. 129
Political effects of the Reformation in Germany ...................... 129-30
The contradictory function of aristocracy: relation to crown .... 130-2
The crisis of government in France ......................................... 132
The economic situation of the English aristocracy .................. 133
Their declining role in the constitution ................................... 134
Taxation in England and France: relation of crown and estates .. 134-5
English customs dues .............................................................. 136-7
The weakness of crown revenues in Western Europe ............... 137-8
The conflict for political control in France and Spain .............. 138-9
Fiscal manoeuvres of European governments ......................... 139-40
The sale of office and economic controls ................................. 140-1
Increased need for a bureaucracy ............................................ 141
The tenure and disposal of appointments ................................. 142
Revenue from specially created posts ..................................... 143
Indirect taxation in England. Wardship ................................... 143-4
The varying facets of 'corruption' .......................................... 144-5
Patronage and government .................................................... 145-6
The growth of professional civil service: a new aristocracy ...... 146-7
Features of the period ........................................................... 147-8
The salvation of parliament in England ................................... 148

CHAPTER VI
INTERNATIONAL DIPLOMACY AND INTERNATIONAL LAW

By the late G. Mattingly, formerly Professor of History, University of Columbia

The issue of the Italian Wars: Spain and France ...................... 150
Diplomacy matches warfare in development ............................ 150-1
Four methods of diplomatic action ......................................... 151-2
The risks of royal interviews. Other channels ......................... 152-3
The machinery for permanent contacts ................................... 153-4
A decline in contacts. The Conference of Bourbourg ............... 154-5
Divisiveness of the religious struggle ..................................... 155-7
Protestant ambassadors leave Italy and Spain ......................... 157-8
The deterioration of Anglo-Spanish relations ......................... 158-9
CONTENTS

The limits of Iberian monopoly in the New World ........................................ page 159-60
Religion a stronger force than nationalism ...................................................... 160-1
The dominant factor affecting ambassadors ..................................................... 161-2
Retrograde means of diplomacy adopted ......................................................... 162-3
Contacts with Russia and Turkey ...................................................................... 163-4
No successes outside Europe .............................................................................. 164-5
A revival of embassies towards the close of the period ...................................... 165
The regulation of international behaviour .......................................................... 165-6
The common law of Christendom ....................................................................... 166-7
Changing modes of thought .............................................................................. 167-8
Rationalisation of conduct: rejection of the recent past ...................................... 168-70

CHAPTER VII

ARMIES, NAVIES AND THE ART OF WAR

By J. R. HALE, Professor of History, University of Warwick

The insistence on war and its justification ......................................................... 171-2
Just causes of war defined .................................................................................. 172-3
The enlistment of science and the arts ............................................................... 174
Difficulties of recruitment. Conditions of service .............................................. 174-6
The dilemma of security: propaganda ............................................................... 176-7
Military books and their effect .......................................................................... 177-8
The mathematical foundations of warfare ......................................................... 178-9
Methods and abuses of recruitment ................................................................... 179-80
Obstacles to efficiency of service ...................................................................... 180
Migrations of man-power .................................................................................. 181
Arguments against and in favour of mercenary ................................................. 181-2
The question of permanent forces .................................................................... 182-3
The command and organisation of armies: Spanish pre-eminence .................... 183-4
Administrative and tactical units ...................................................................... 184-5
The regulation of armies: military laws .............................................................. 185-6
The maintenance of morale .............................................................................. 186-7
The use, development and decoration of armour .............................................. 187-8
Arms: caliver and musket, pistols ..................................................................... 188-9
Artillery: cannon, culverins and mortars ............................................................ 189-90
International trade in munitions ...................................................................... 191
Organisation: artillery, cavalry, infantry ............................................................ 191-2
The example of ancient Rome .......................................................................... 193
Tactics and drill ................................................................................................. 193-4
Tactical formations of infantry and cavalry. Artillery ........................................ 194-5
The theory and practice of fortification .............................................................. 195-7
Methods of paying for fortifications ................................................................. 197-8
Siegecraft. Parma's siege of Antwerp ................................................................. 198-200
Strategy not much considered .......................................................................... 200-1
Private enterprise in peace and war ................................................................. 201-2
The subsidiary part of navies .......................................................................... 202
Galleys, galleasses and galleons ....................................................................... 202-3
Naval ordnance and tactics. Design ................................................................. 204-5
Naval strategy and organisation ....................................................................... 206
The atmosphere of war .................................................................................... 206-8
CONTENTS

CHAPTER VIII

THE BRITISH QUESTION 1559-69

By R. B. Wernham

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>The strategic importance of the British Isles</td>
<td>209-10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rivalries for succession and control</td>
<td>210-11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The position of Elizabeth. Her bold and independent policies</td>
<td>211-12</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Revolution in Scotland. ‘Lords of the Congregation’</td>
<td>212-13</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>French interests. Elizabeth’s counter-measures</td>
<td>213-15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Uncertain approaches to Scottish independence and amity with England</td>
<td>215</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Instability in Scotland and in France</td>
<td>216</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The return of Mary Stuart</td>
<td>217</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Protestant lords and ministers. The policy of Moray</td>
<td>217-18</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mary’s claim to the English succession: the attitude of Elizabeth</td>
<td>219</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Elizabeth’s reaction to the French War of Religion</td>
<td>220-1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The illness of Elizabeth and subsequent pressures</td>
<td>221</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Developments affecting the question of Mary’s marriage</td>
<td>222</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mary marries the Earl of Darnley</td>
<td>223-4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The subsequent crisis: her appeals to the Continent</td>
<td>224-5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>She turns to Rizzio, who is murdered</td>
<td>226</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mary favours Bothwell. The death of Darnley</td>
<td>227-8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Presumptions against Mary and Bothwell</td>
<td>228</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mary loses her throne. Moray becomes regent</td>
<td>229</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>British unity delayed by English policies</td>
<td>229-30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Elizabeth’s reservations sustain the Marian party</td>
<td>230-1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mary a focus for the discontents of Northern England</td>
<td>231-2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Failure of the rebellion. British security strengthened</td>
<td>233</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

CHAPTER IX

WESTERN EUROPE AND THE POWER OF SPAIN

By H. G. Koenigsberger, Professor of Early Modern European History, Cornell University

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>The growth of religious confrontations</td>
<td>234-5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Religious emotion and politics. ‘Fifth columns’</td>
<td>236-7</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I. SPAIN AND ITALY</td>
<td>237-8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Spain and the concept of empire</td>
<td>238</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Unification: the Councils. Correspondence</td>
<td>238-9</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Personnel: viceroys and governors</td>
<td>239-40</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Philip’s absenteeism: Granvelle’s insight and advice</td>
<td>240-1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Consultas: the power of ministers and secretaries.</td>
<td>241-2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Philip’s indecisiveness and personal inaccessibility</td>
<td>242-3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The rivalries of factions</td>
<td>243-4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Protestantism in Spain</td>
<td>244</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The situation of the Moriscoes</td>
<td>244-5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Events leading to their revolt</td>
<td>245-6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Revolt and settlement</td>
<td>246-7</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Portugal: the succession question</td>
<td>247-8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Philip annexes Portugal: Alva’s campaign</td>
<td>248</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
CONTENTS

The terms and conditions of union ........................................ page 248–9
Eastern Spain: Catalonia ....................................................... 249–50
Revolt in Aragon: antecedents and results ........................... 250–1
Spaniard and Turk in the Mediterranean ............................... 251–2
Pius V's Holy League. The significance of Lepanto ............. 252
Truce arrived at ................................................................. 253
The situation in Sicily, Naples and Milan .............................. 254–6
Genoa's service and prosperity ............................................. 257
Spanish relations with the papacy ......................................... 257–8
The challenge of Borromeo .................................................. 258–9
Piedmont-Savoy: the absolutist rule of Emmanuel Philibert .... 259–60
The rule of the Medicis in Florence ...................................... 260–1
The trade and culture of independent Venice ......................... 261–2
Venetian politics: France, the papacy, Spain ......................... 263

2. THE PROBLEMS OF THE NETHERLANDS AND FRANCE TO 1585

Netherlands: the period of Philip's residence ......................... 264
The appointment of Margaret of Parma: her task .................. 265
Religious problems ............................................................. 265–6
Philip's plan for reorganisation of the Netherlands Church .... 266–7
The emergence of William of Orange and his friends ............ 267
Financial crisis and opposition to Granvelle ......................... 267–8
The situation after Granvelle's departure ............................. 268–9
Unemployment and famine lead to riots ............................... 269–70
Alba supersedes Margaret. The Council of Blood ................. 270–1
His administrative and financial problems ......................... 271–2
Purpose, preparations and failure of William and Louis ........ 273–4
Progress of Calvinist Sea Beggars in Holland and Zeeland ..... 274
Requesens succeeds Alba. A further financial crisis .......... 275
Aerschot and the politiques. The Pacification of Ghent ........ 275–6
The governorship of Don John ............................................. 276
Opposition to Spain: unity without harmony ......................... 277–8
The coming of Parma .......................................................... 278
The two Unions. The Duke of Anjou .................................... 279
Parma embarks on re-conquest ........................................... 280
William's death. An assessment .......................................... 280–1
France: the situation after Cateau-Cambrésis ....................... 281
The organisation of Calvinist communities ......................... 282
The French nobility: Guise, Bourbon, Montmorency ............. 283–4
Rising passions in the reign of Francis II ............................ 284–5
Catherine de Medici: her aims .......................................... 285–6
Civil War: the first round. Condé's part ......................... 286
Catherine's increased authority. The second war .............. 286–7
The third war ................................................................. 288
Catherine and Coligny ....................................................... 288–9
The Massacre of St Bartholomew's Eve. The fourth war ......... 290
The politiques. The nobility's vested interest in war .......... 291
Huguenots and Catholics. The Peace of Monsieur .............. 292
The Catholic League: its aims and terms ............................. 292–3
Renewed warfare and the Peace of Bergerac ....................... 293
Temporisation and intrigue .............................................. 293–4
CONTENTS

3. THE FRENCH SUCCESSION AND THE WAR WITH ENGLAND

Manoeuvres for the succession in France ............................................................... page 295
Philip's designs upon England. The war becomes European ............................... 296
His financial position: loans ............................................................................. 296-7
The Earl of Leicester's Netherlands expeditions .............................................. 297-8
Particularism of the northern provinces ........................................................... 299
Preparations for the English invasion ............................................................... 299-300
Philip and the Guises ....................................................................................... 300-1
The defeat of the Armada. Philip's reaction. ...................................................... 301
Henry rid of Guise. The League and the King ................................................... 301-2
Disturbances in Paris. The death of Henry III ................................................... 302-3
The character and claims of Henry of Navarre ................................................. 303
Philip and the papacy ....................................................................................... 303-4
Mayenne. Divisions within the Catholic League .............................................. 305-6
Navarre enters Paris and reverts to Catholicism ............................................... 306
The character of sixteenth-century revolutionary movements ....................... 306-7
The emergence of a European state system ..................................................... 307-8
Changes in Spain's external situation ............................................................... 308
Her war with England. The Irish rebellions ..................................................... 308-9
The Spanish position in the Netherlands .......................................................... 309-10
Division: the rule of the archdukes .................................................................. 310-11
Economic expansion of the north. The East India Company ............................ 311
The economic weakness of the Spanish government ....................................... 312
Philip II: the achievements of his reign ............................................................ 313
France: the Edict of Nantes ............................................................................. 313-14
Reconstruction, economic and political. Officials ............................................ 314-16
Spain, France and the Spanish Road ................................................................. 317
The interventions of Henry. His assassination .................................................. 317-18

CHAPTER X

THE AUSTRIAN HABSBURGS AND THE EMPIRE

By G. D. RAMSAY, Fellow and Tutor in Modern History, St Edmund Hall, Oxford

Ferdinand's inheritance and its condition ........................................................... 319
Assessment of Ferdinand, Maximilian and Rudolf ............................................ 320
Territorial divisions and family solidarity of the Habsburgs ............................. 320-2
The significance of the Turkish menace ............................................................ 322
The religious position in Habsburg lands .......................................................... 323-4
The religious policies of the successive emperors ............................................ 324-5
Progress of the Counter-Reformation .............................................................. 325-6
The imperial title: electoral process ................................................................. 326-7
The estates of the Empire .................................................................................. 327-8
The constitution of the Reichstag and its practical authority ......................... 328-9
The Empire's lawcourts ..................................................................................... 329-30
The basis of administration and enforcement ................................................ 330-1
The German principalities and their rulers ....................................................... 331-2
The Electorate of Saxony under Augustus and Christian ................................ 332-3
The Palatinate: Frederick III and his successors .............................................. 333-4
Bavaria: religion and politics under the dukes ................................................ 334-6

xi
CONTENTS

Some causes of political tension in Germany ........................................ page 336–7
The ecclesiastical principalities: 'ecclesiastical reservation' ....................... 337–8
Breaches of the peace: the episode of Grumbach .................................. 338–9
The abbot of Fulda and the bishop of Würzburg .................................. 339–40
The struggle for the electorate of Cologne ............................................. 340–2
The marriage and the warfare of Archbishop Gebhard .......................... 342–3
Successes of the Counter-Reformation in north-west Germany ............... 343–4
The uncertainty of the free cities ....................................................... 344–5
Conclusion ............................................................................................ 345–6

CHAPTER XI
THE OTTOMAN EMPIRE 1566–1617

By V. J. Parry, Lecturer in the History of the Near and Middle East, School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London

The Sultan's household: recruitment and training ................................ 347–8
Sipahis: their organisation and rewards .............................................. 348–50
Decline: the criticisms of Hasan al-Kâff and Koçu Beg ......................... 351–2
Expansion gives place to a static frontier ............................................. 352
The War of Cyprus. The battle of Lepanto .......................................... 352–4
Spain and the Ottomans in North Africa .............................................. 354
Antagonism of Ottomans and Persians .................................................. 355
The Muscovite advance and the Astrakhan campaign ......................... 355–6
Difficulties of the eastern campaigns .................................................. 356–7
The internal crisis of Persia .................................................................. 357–8
The Persian War: Mustafâ Pasha and the first campaign ...................... 358–9
The successes of Osmân Pasha: Derbend and after ............................... 359
The later campaigns and the end of the war. Renewed feuds in Persia .... 359–60
The Ottomans and Austria, Systems of defence ................................... 360–1
The Hungarian War. Losses and gains on the Danube ......................... 362
The Ottomans suffer a rout and make a recovery ................................. 363
Sieges, a final campaign and peace ..................................................... 363–4
Significance of the place and the terms .............................................. 364–5
Effect of the wars on Ottoman institutions: the Janissaries ................. 365–6
New factors in the economic field ...................................................... 366–7
English merchants in the Mediterranean ............................................. 367–8
Trade in war materials: propaganda against England ......................... 368–70
Financial difficulties of the Ottomans. Causes of the 'price revolution' . 369–70
Consequences of the fiscal troubles .................................................... 370–1
Discontents and quarrels lead to revolt .............................................. 372–3
The years of rebellion. Murad Pasha .................................................. 373–4
The renewed conflict with the Safawids .............................................. 374–5
A decline noted .................................................................................... 376

CHAPTER XII
POLAND AND LITHUANIA

By P. Skwarczyński, Reader in Central European History, School of Slavonic and East European Studies, University of London

Extent and population of the realm at Sigismund II's death .................... 377
Degrees, differences and distribution of the nobles ............................... 378–9
The clergy. The peasants and the countryside ..................................... 379–80
CONTENTS

The towns. Privileges of Danzig ........................................... 380-1
Differences of religion and of language ............................... 381
The election of kings: contrasting occasions ........................ 381-2
Henry of Valois, Stephen Bathory, Sigismund Vasa: their policies and problems .......................... 383
Henry comes and goes. Stephen and the townspeople of Danzig ........................................ 384
The challenge to Sigismund. Treaty with the Habsburgs .............. 384-5
The conception of kingship: powers and prerogatives .................. 385-7
Sigismund's proposed reforms lead to rebellion ....................... 387-8
Religion: the Catholic and Orthodox Churches ......................... 388-90
Calvinists, Lutherans and other Protestants .......................... 390-1
Relations between the different Churches: a policy of moderation . 391-3
Foreign policy: Russia and the Smolensk question .................... 393-4
Habsburg intrigues for the crown of Poland ............................ 394-5
Prussia and the Hohenzollerns ............................................. 395-6
Polish relations with Turkey .............................................. 396
Defence: the army and the use of mercenaries ........................ 397
The economy. Agriculture and industry. Mining ....................... 397-9
The importance of the large estates ..................................... 399-400
Trade and transport. Danzig and Eastland Company .................. 400-2
Luxury and poverty. The Court ........................................... 402
Patronage and the Arts. Historical writing ............................ 402-3

CHAPTER XIII

SWEDEN AND THE BALTIC

By I. Andersson, lately Director, the Riksarkivet, Stockholm, Member of Swedish Academy

Contrasts between Mediterranean and Baltic lands ..................... 404-5
Economics and strategy: the background to Sweden's advance ........ 405-7
The foreign policies of Gustavus Vasa and of Eric XIV ............... 407-8
War with Denmark: its beginnings ........................................ 408-9
The Seven Years War and the Peace of Stettin .......................... 409-11
War with Russia. Poland secures Livonia ............................... 411-12
The external policies of John III ....................................... 412-13
Internal dissensions. John's death ..................................... 414
Sigismund and the Swedish crown. Duke Charles and the Council .... 415
Duke and commons: the breach with Poland. Russia .................... 416
The character and policy of Charles IX as king. War in Livonia .... 417-18
Unrest in Russia. The war shifts onto Russian soil .................... 418
Sweden, Poland and Russia: moves and counter-moves .................. 418-20
Denmark and Sweden. War and the death of Charles ................... 420-2
The succession of Gustavus Adolphus and the new constitution ....... 422
Peace with Denmark: its terms harsh for Sweden ....................... 423
Peace with Russia: acquisitions and failures .......................... 423-4
The ransoming of Elfsborg, and the Dutch pact ........................ 424-5
The economy and the administration. The view ahead .................. 425-6
CONTENTS

CHAPTER XIV
EDUCATION AND LEARNING

By R. R. Bolgar, Fellow of King's College, Cambridge

Popular education: reading, writing and counting ............... page 427-8
Apprenticeship: vernacular training and handbooks ............... 428-9
Universities: the revolt of the humanists ...................... 429-30
Care for moral training ...................................... 430
The impact of the Reformation. The work of Sturm .......... 430-1
Loyola and the Jesuit schools ................................ 431-2
The development of schools and adjustment with the Universities 432
The grammar school (lower forms): methods and textbooks .... 433-5
The grammar school (higher forms): curriculum and books .... 435-7
Greek as an ancillary study. The school course assessed ... 437-8
Universities become local: the constricting forces of theology 438-9
A growth in higher education, but with narrowed scope ...... 439-40
The influences affecting learning ........................... 440
Theological debate. Study and translations of the Bible ... 440-1
Developments in philosophy .................................. 441-3
Political thought and historical writing. Historical method ... 443-5
Legal studies. Civil law. International law .................. 445-6
Archaeology. Linguistics. Academic humanism ... 447-8
The study of European and Asian languages. Science ....... 448-9
The distribution of educational facilities and of learning .... 450-1
Summary. Vernacular literature and the diffusion of culture 451-2

CHAPTER XV
SCIENCE

By Marie Boas Hall, Reader in History of Science and Technology, Imperial College, London

A bridge period: from tradition to innovation ................. 453-4
The popularisation of science. Scholars and craftsmen ........ 454-5
Works on mechanics and navigation. Cartography .............. 455-6
Travel literature ........................................... 456-7
Progress in mathematics. Algebra ............................ 457-8
Astronomy: the impact of Copernicanism ...................... 459-61
English interest in Copernicus ................................ 461-2
Religious objection: the case of Bruno ......................... 462
Tycho Brahe: his career, beliefs and system .... 462-5
Astronomy and the calendar .................................. 465-6
Navigation: new devices. The invention of the log .......... 466-8
Compass variation. The dip .................................. 468-9
Charts, tables and maps. The Mercator projection .......... 469-71
Physics ....................................................... 471
Botany and zoology ........................................ 471-2
Medicine: blood circulation ................................ 472-3
Magic: its nature and scope ................................ 475-7
Magnetism. The loadstone .................................... 477-8
The achievement of the period. A changing outlook ......... 478-9

xiv
CONTENTS

CHAPTER XVI

POLITICAL THOUGHT AND THE THEORY AND PRACTICE OF TOLERATION

By Miss M. J. Tooley, formerly Lecturer in History, Bedford College, London

Individual choice. The problems of ‘heresy’ ................................................................. page 480–1
The Inquisition. The burning of Servetus ............................................................................. 481–3
Persecution condemned. Truth and the individual conscience ......................................... 483–4
Socinus: the disjunction of theology and ethics ................................................................. 484–5
Castellion: truth and heresy. ............................................................................................... 485–6
Bodin on the need for belief. Heptaplomeres ..................................................................... 486–7
The futility of persecution ................................................................................................. 487–8
The political repercussions of religious disputes .............................................................. 488–9
The sovereignty of the state: Bodin and Machiavelli ......................................................... 490
Sovereignty in France and in Germany .............................................................................. 490–1
England: the reconciling of free conscience with national order .................................... 491–2
Belief and practice. Jesuit trials. The Separatists ............................................................... 492–3
Royal supremacy: the English version of state sovereignty ............................................ 493–4
Bilson, Cartwright, Whitgift .............................................................................................. 494–5
Hooker: government and the care of religion ................................................................... 495–9
The Calvinists and the doctrine of resistance .................................................................. 499–500
Secular theories of state. Beza. The Vindiciae ................................................................ 500–2
Buchanan’s egalitarianism .................................................................................................. 502–3
Forms of constitution. Bodin ............................................................................................ 503–4
Representative institutions. Hotman ................................................................................ 504–5
The shift from obligation to rights. Individualism .............................................................. 505–6

CHAPTER XVII

COLONIAL DEVELOPMENT AND INTERNATIONAL RIVALRIES OUTSIDE EUROPE

I. AMERICA

By J. H. Parry, Professor in Oceanic History and Affairs, Harvard University

Expeditions of the conquistadores. Limits to extension ..................................................... 507–8
Portuguese settlements. ....................................................................................................... 508
A slowing down of Spanish expansion. ............................................................................. 508–9
The imperial policy of Philip II ......................................................................................... 509–11
Civil administration. Revenue .......................................................................................... 511–12
Population and labour problems ...................................................................................... 512–13
Food-shortages and their effect on the economy ............................................................... 513–14
Haciendas. Changes in policy towards the Indians ........................................................... 514–15
Economic and demographic crises in Spain and the Indies ............................................ 515–16
Piracy and illicit trade. The plans of John Hawkins .......................................................... 516–17
Pedro Menéndez: fortifications and the convoy system .................................................... 518–19
The plans and the achievements of Francis Drake ............................................................. 520–1
The ‘Indies Voyage’ 1585–6. The capture of Santo Domingo ........................................... 521–2
Limited success of subsequent raids ................................................................................ 522–3
The reluctance of England and France to plant settlements ............................................ 523–4
New motives for colonisation: Gilbert’s Newfoundland .................................................. 524–5

XV
CONTENTS

Grenville and Raleigh. Roanoke and the Guiana ventures ........................................... page 525–6
The conditions unfavourable to English and French colonisation ........................................ 526
A changing concept. Causes political, economic and social .............................................. 527–8
Propaganda for western settlements. Hakluyt ........................................................................ 528
English colonisation: the ideal and the reality ................................................................. 529–30
French trade and settlements. Champlain ........................................................................ 530–1

2. ASIA AND AFRICA

By J. B. Harrison, Reader in History of South Asia, School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London

Portugal's eastern problems. Estado da India .................................................................. 532–3
The eclipse of Antwerp-based marketing ............................................................................. 533–4
Rivalries of the spice trade ................................................................................................. 534–6
Operations and defence of the Estado ............................................................................. 536–7
Revenues of the Estado. Private trading ......................................................................... 538–9
Portuguese interests in Africa and Arabia .......................................................................... 539–40
Developments in India ....................................................................................................... 540–1
Problems and profits of the Portuguese in Malacca ............................................................ 541–2
The crown and the spice trade. Failure of the Estado ..................................................... 542–3
Trade with China and Japan. Macau. Silver ..................................................................... 543–5
The capacity of the Estado for defence and offence ...................................................... 545–6
The conquest of Ceylon: revolt and restoration ................................................................. 546
Syriam. Ternate. Amboina ................................................................................................. 546–7
Missionary work in India and the Middle East .................................................................. 547–50
The Jesuits in Japan and China ......................................................................................... 550–3
The Spanish Philippines. Traders and missionaries .......................................................... 554–6
The eastward expansion of Russia ....................................................................................... 556
The Asian trade interests of England .................................................................................. 556–7
The Dutch enter the field. The United East India Company ............................................... 557–8

INDEX .......................................................................................................................... 559