Private and Public Voices in Victorian Poetry
Contents

Preface ................................................................................................................................. 3

PARVIN LOLOI
Tennyson, FitzGerald, and Cowell: A Private Relationship with Public
Consequences ...................................................................................................................... 5

FLORENCE HEYDE
The Language of Landscape .............................................................................................. 19

DENIZ TARBA CEYLAN
The Private and the Public in Matthew Arnold’s Poetry .................................................... 31

GLYN PURSGLOVE
R.S. Hawker’s The Quest of Sangraal .................................................................................. 39

ELIAS POLIZOES
“Hushed Voices”: The Dramatic Monologue from Robert Browning
to T.S. Eliot ........................................................................................................................ 51

JAMES HOGG
A Victorian Everyman: Robert Browning’s “Andrea Del Sarto” ...................................... 67

BEATRIX HESSE
The Private Life of Robert Browning, According to Henry James ..................................... 79

ROSIE MILES
Binding Men: William Morris’s The Defence of Guenevere and the Circulation of Masculine Desire .................................................................................. 89

J.-A. GEORGE
A Very Private Gesture: William Morris’ A Book of Verse and its Public Sequel ........................................................................................................... 103

ILEANA MARIN
Poetry, or Individual Reading and Painting or Public Sharing .......................................... 111

SABINE COELSCH-FOISNER
“I’m but a lowly gooseberry ...”:
The Diary and Poetry of William Allingham .................................................................... 119
SILVIA MERGENTHAL
Letitia Elizabeth Landon and the Question of Literary Grandmothers......137

GESÁ STEDMAN
“Private” Passions in Public Places – Women’s Poetry on the Feelings......149

SAROLTA MARINOVICH-RESCH
The Dialogue of the Public and the Private Voice in Aurora Leigh..........161

JOHN WOOLFORD
‘Private Words Addressed to You in Public’: Christina Rossetti and the Question of Communication........................................................................173

VALERIA TINKLER-VILLANI
Action and Reticence: Christina Rossetti and Algernon Swinburne..........187

CHRISTOPHER SMITH
Lydia Bosworth Smith’s Poetry:
Final Limits of a Disempowered Imagination.............................................199

PARASKEVI PAPALEONIDA
The Acoustics of Late Victorian Women’s Poetry......................................213

EDWARD H. COHEN
Private and Public, Life and Art, in W.E. Henley’s Hospital Poems.........227

LILIANA POP
A Particular Instance of ‘Religious Poetry’:
The Case of Gerard Manley Hopkins..........................................................237

MARIACONCETTA COSTANTINI
Paradigms of Mortality in the Poetry of Gerard Manley Hopkins.............249

GÜNTHER JARFE
Time, Love, and Decay in Swinburne’s Poetry..........................................261

ROLF LESSENICH
Algernon Charles Swinburne’s “Thalassius” (1880) and Decadent
Conversionism..............................................................................................271

CLIVE SCOTT
Public Structures and Vocal Inflexions in the Poetry of the 1890s............283